EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

A Vexatious Conundrum: Why Didn't T. T. Sell?

NEW YORK, August 18.—Tilton told a reporter to-day that he never received a cent from Beecher directly or indirectly, but that on the day Moulton made his statement to the Committee he was offered $10,000 by Henry C. Kingsley. A clerk of Kingsley's confirms this statement to the extent of $5,000. Tilton says Kingsley made no conditions, but says the object of the offer was to bring this disgraceful business to an end.

The Report of Mr. Beecher's Committee.

The Sub-Committee of the Investigating Committee of Plymouth Church, consisting of Sage, Winslow and Cleveland, held a meeting to-day for the purpose of consulting as to how their report should be drawn up. It was decided to commit the preparation of a draft of a report to Winslow, the draft to be submitted to the other two members of the Committee for revision. These in turn will submit to the Committee of six, who will make any alterations necessary, and then hand it over to the Examining Committee of Plymouth Church, who will report at the business meeting.

The Origin of the Compromise Gossip.

NEW YORK, August 19.—The Tribune shows explicitly that the recent talk of compromising the B[illegible]er case came from Moulton's friend, William C. Kingsley, who openly avowed that Moulton's [illegible] was at stake. For this reason he wanted to stop proceedings, and [illegible] personally to help Tilton, whose friend he was. It was a compact between Kingsley, Moulton, the latter's brother, Franklin Woodruff and others that it was decided that Moulton should either attack Beecher or defend Tilton further by submitting the papers called for by the Committee. General Butler advised the suppression of a long statement Moulton had prepared, under provocation of published references to him as a blackmailer.

Concerning Certain Financial Operations.

A member of the Committee says the books of the Moulton firm show monetary transactions sustaining Beecher's statements about payments of money. His story is that Moulton advanced money to Tilton, and repaid himself by taxing Beecher.

The War of Races.

AUGUSTA, Ga., August 18.—There are continued reports of an impending fight between the whites and negroes of Ridge Springs, Edgefield county, South Carolina. A party of armed whites left here this afternoon to aid their friends, and others will follow in case a conflict occurs. At 9 o'clock to-night all was quiet, but both parties are arming and there is a growing fear that a war of races will begin in South Carolina, and in that event the white people of Georgia on the Savannah river will go to the rescue of the whites. Arms and ammunition are being shipped from here.

A Promising Indian Expedition.

OMAHA, August 18.—An expedition under command of Col. Anson Mills, of [illegible] of three companies of the Third Cavalry and one of the Fourth Infantry, is now encamped near Rawlins, Wyoming. Other companies and some Shoshone Indians will join the command. The instructions are to thoroughly scout the valleys of the Sweetwater, Powder and Big Horn rivers, and the country to the southern extremity of Yellowstone Lake, and administer the severest punishment possible to Indians found out of reservations. Much is expected of the expedition, which is finely equipped, and will be three months in the field.

CHICAGO, August 18.—A fire at Shellding, Me., this morning, destroyed eight large stores and several other buildings in the business centre of the town. Loss, $50,000 to $75,000; insurance, $15,000 to $20,000.

[illegible] Wool [illegible]

BOSTON, August 18.—There is no change to notice in the wool trade. Manufacturers are not yet certain about the fall demand for goods, although the [illegible] of trade are improving. But holders of wool are satisfied that no matter what the demand for goods may be, there is more wool in the country than may be wanted. California wool is steady, and all choice lots command firm prices, ruling from 28 to 42 cents for spring as to quality and condition, the latter being the very extreme[illegible].

A TRIP TO THE MOUNTAINS.

MAILS WANTED—OTHER THINGS.

SALEM, August 17, 1874.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Well, the undersigned has been to the mountains, fulfilling the inexorable law of fashion, and he is consequently happy. Being unwell, and the rest of the family having the dumps, an expedition was determined upon for the double purpose of recruiting and gathering a winter supply of blackberries, of which we had been informed great quantities could be had for the gathering. A team having been chartered, and an abundant supply of provisions laid in for a protracted stay, we started for the "mountains so blue." After a hard day's travel, we camped at Thomas's on the Quartzville road, forty miles from Salem, all tired, hungry and cross; but soon set things aright. The next morning we started for the patch, armed with tins and kettles sufficient to hold about thirty gallons of the coveted fruit. After climbing a hill that was little short of a quarter of a mile high, and very precipitous, we came to a burnt district, and were informed that the "patch" was just across the branch which ran along in front of us at the bottom of a deep gully filled with logs, and made almost impassable by vine maple, fern and other vegetation of rank growth. After about a half an hour's severe toil we reached the goal of our morning's expedition, and applied ourselves assiduously to the task of filling our vessels, but I soon made the discovery that making my hands pin cushions for the receptacle of the myriads of thorns tended to destroy the romance of berry picking, while the ladies, whose nimble fingers were protected by old kid gloves with the ends of the fingers cut away for that purpose, soon eclipsed me in the quantity obtained, and proceeded to make me the mark for their witty tongues. This had the effect to aggravate instead of soothing the pain of my wounded hands while I searched for the minute and annoying thorns. But it was evident that I had not yet encountered the worst of my woes for the day, as, in a few minutes afterwards, I sat a vessel of berries plump down into a yellow jackets' nest, whereupon those combative insects immediately "went for" me, and I struck out for camp at a rapid rate, giving vent to a whoop that would have been a compliment to a Modoc Indian, and my hands actively employed in defending myself from the lightning-like gyrations of my assailants. To make the matter more interesting, I heard at the same time merry peals of laughter from the ladies as I plunged from log to log, and finally brought up in the branch. It had such a Christianizing influence upon a person! I will simply add I have not picked any berries since, and do not intend to pick any. I never did like yellow jackets, and since my return home read in vain all the works on etymology I could find to discover what they were good for. Mrs. '47 says it is to keep awkward men out of berry patches. Probably she is right.

All along the route for 25 miles the wheat and other small grain crops were ready for the sickle; the reaper and thresher were busy garnering the abundant crop, and from conversations with farmers, I gather that the crop is at least one-fourth larger in acreage and equal in yield per acre to that of last year. From the best estimation the crop for 1873 was 5,000,000 bushels surplus, so this year (1874) it will probably be at least 6,250,000 bushels, and all of extra quality. But in some of the prairies along the foot of the mountain range the crop is yet scarcely ripe enough to cut, except in a few cases. The late rains have not injured it materially, however—only delayed the harvesting. The hay crop in that portion of the valley has been very abundant, and of a superior quality—so much so that all the farmers will have more than an ample supply for their stock the coming winter, whereas a great many run short during the protracted storms of last winter.

One of the greatest wants of that portion of Linn county is a mail route, which the citizens have for a long time been trying to get the "powers that be" at Washington to create. There is scarcely a paper taken in that whole region of country, which embraces a large district, simply because they have no postoffice, the nearest one being at Scio, a distance of 20 miles, if I remember aright. A petition was circulated and received the signatures of all the citizens for a weekly mail, to leave Scio, pass through Jordan valley and terminate at Gardner's, on Fox prairie. The petition was sent on to Washington City, and the petitioners were informed that a route would be established if it could be made self-sustaining. Mr. Gardner was appointed Postmaster. Bids were offered by several parties living near Scio at $400 per annum, and to leave Scio on Friday morning of each week (so, I am told), which would be practically no benefit, as the mail arrives at Scio on Friday evenings of each week, containing the papers published in this State, therefore it would allow them to remain over one week at Scio. The petition asked that the mail leave Gardner's, in Fox prairie, on Saturday morning and return the same day in the evening, and a bid was made to carry the same at $75 per annum, by horse, being $325 cheaper than the bids made at Scio, and thus the matter stands. At present, if any of the farmers in Fox or King's prairies subscribe for any of the Oregon papers they lie at Scio until some one goes to that place on business and they get from two to six weeks' mails, which is very discouraging, to say the least. It is to be hoped that the matter will be looked after by our Senators now residing at Washington City.

While up there, I was told that there was a great many trout to be caught; and, as I had never been guilty of capturing more than half a dozen mountain trout in all my life, I determined to try my luck. So arming myself with hook and line, and being well supplied with bait, I started for the river, which I soon found, and perched myself on a slippery rock, "threw in my hook with such a winning look," as the song goes. I was rewarded, after about half an hour's waiting, with a genuine "bite," and pulled away with intense desire of seeing my prize, which came out of the water in fine style, but during the excitement, my foot slipped, and into the water I went, where it was about three feet deep and rather swift. In getting out, I inadvertently let go my rod, when, presto, the fish started down stream, taking hook, line and pole, without so much as saying thank you, while I waded ashore about as wet a fisherman as you could find in the State, and, concluding that fishing was not my "forte," I struck out for camp. The next day it commenced to rain and kept it up for two days, when we started for Salem, thoroughly satisfied with the trip to the mountains. The amount of berries we gathered was four gallons. The cost of the trip, including outfit, $20; I believe it is cheaper to buy berries—but then there is the fun of going, which si always enjoyable for '47.

Official notice has been given of the election in Washington Territory for a Delegate to Congress, Prosecuting Attorneys for the three Judicial Districts, members of the Legislature and county offices. The day fixed is Tuesday, 3d day of November.

Cloud bursts are becoming as common as calamitous. Besides the frightfully destructive one at Pittsburg, Pa., and Eureka, Nevada, a few days ago, there were still others along the line of the Central Pacific Railroad and in Colorado and Arizona, doing slight damage. It is bad enough for the bottom to fall out of a country, but it is even worse for it to fall out of the clouds.

The biggest thing we have heard about grasshoppers is the following from the Bismarck Tribune of July 22d: "Last night's train was behind time owing to grasshoppers on the eastern end of this division, which were so thick as to grease the rails, and compelled the engineer to double the road for fifteen miles, taking half the train each trip. The pests have destroyed all the vegetation in Fargo."

On or about the 13th of July, a stabbing affray took place on Horse Prairie, at Romain's ranch, about twelve miles from Bannack. John Romain stabbed a man by the name of Plummer four times—one wound is liable to prove fatal. The quarrel commenced about horse racing. Plummer had "put a head" on Romain, and then followed him to the house to pound him further, when Romain stabbed him.

LETTER FROM NORTHWEST.

ALBANY, August 17, 1874.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Favorable weather for harvesting is now fully established and the farmers are taking full advantage of it by unceasing industry in securing their crops. On prairie lands that lie very flat and undrained, the yield will not be so abundant as last year, but rolling and hilly grounds will yield more so than formerly. The general opinion is, that the average yield will be equal to 1873, and the extent of acreage much on the increase, so that there is now no danger of an abundant harvest.

LINN COUNTY

Will exceed any former year in its production of wheat. The lowest average will be twenty bushels to the acre, and the entire yield is estimated from a million and a quarter to a million and a half bushels. The merchants of

ALBANY

Are making preparations for storing and shipping. There are now ten warehouses in this prosperous town, for storing and shipping wheat, with a capacity of 850,000 bushels. From this point and Harrisburg, there will be shipped this season, by railroad and river, not less than 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. There is no inland town in the State showing more signs of enterprise and progress than Albany. It is the centre of as fine and extensive agricultural lands as are in the Willamette Valley; it is conveniently situated for shipping by railroad or river; the millers, warehousemen and merchants are liberal and enterprising; the farmers are intelligent, industrious and prosperous. The Albany College, under Professor Warren, attracts population and diffuses knowledge. The farmers are well organized for mutual protection and making improvements, and an excellent feeling of co-operation prevails among all classes, for the general good. This is seen in the enterprise manifested by the farmers, millers and merchants, in bringing the waters of the Santiam river to Albany by means of a canal thirteen miles long, at an expense of $50,000, just completed and in successful operation. It will add immensely to the water power of the town and make it one of the leading centers for manufacturing, in the State. All the mills and all the warehouses that can avail themselves of this water-power are making arrangements to do so. The canal will be available this fall for freighting wheat, flour and lumber from Lebanon and the surrounding country. The same parties are taking active measures to have the obstructions to summer and fall navigation in the Willamette river from Albany to Portland removed in time for this season's shipments of wheat. These two enterprises show what the people can do for themselves when intelligent and united, and the folly of waiting on the slow operations of red tape officials, the paltry grants of Congress and the action of corrupt politicians.

Among the private enterprises at this place worthy of special notice is the warehouse of

PARKER & MORRIS,

Built this summer and now ready for storing wheat. It is erected on the bank of the Willamette river, 90x70 feet, with an elevator 40 feet high, and a capacity of storing 180,000 bushels. It has two fans for cleaning the wheat and can clean, weigh and receive 7,000 bushels in ten hours. The elevator and entire machinery is driven by the water power from the canal just completed from the Santiam river, and a new wheel invented sometime since by Mr. Moore, of Brownsville. The water has a head of thirty-three feet and fifty horse power. The entire cost will be about $14,000. This is considered one of the most complete warehouses in the State.

NEWBY AND SON

Have built this season a large, fine warehouse at the railroad station, and it will be completed in a few days. It is a one-story building, 200 feet long by 100 feet wide, and will hold 250,000 bushels of wheat. They have every convenience for receiving and shipping, equal to 10,000 bushels a day. They only store in sacks, and have the warehouse divided into 60 sections, so that each farmer can have his wheat kept separate from all others, and the same wheat delivered as received. The warehouse will cost about $10,000. These young men deserve credit for their enterprise. Their excellent characters, obliging manners, and their business connections, ensure them success. They intend doing a large lumber business when the wheat season is over, as well as a general commission business for their friends. Albany may well be proud of such public and private enterprises; and of the men who take the lead, and set such praiseworthy examples to other towns and districts of the State.

The demand for dwelling-houses is very great; ten new ones have been built this summer, and as many as fifty more could have been rented.

THE GRANGERS

Are well and efficiently organized in Linn county. They have appointed Mr. L. C. Burkhart their general agent for this county. He is the right man in the right place. He tells me that he will have for sale, as their agent, from 300,000 to 500,000 bushels of wheat, stored at different points on the railroad and river, and that he is prepared to receive offers for the same. Farmers will not sell for much less than $1 a bushel, and from 80 to 85 cents will be the lowest price for the present. Hitherto the farmers have been the victims of all kinds of combinations among shippers, warehousemen and buyers generally, but their co-operation for mutual protection is producing a complete revolution in their favor. They are learning the value of the proverb that in union there is strength. If farmers are fairly remunerated for their labor there is no limit to the extent of cultivation, and the production of wheat and other cereals in this State; when farmers are prosperous all other industries are profitable, and the State progressive.

NORTHWEST.

A PROTEGE OF THE PRINCE OF WALES.—A Napanee (Can.) correspondent of the La Crosse (Wis.) Republican, says: "This morning, in a walk, I noticed the quick, wiry, springing step of an Indian, who was leading his pony as he passed. He was of the old Mohawk tribe, who hold a reservation at Mill Point, near this place. When the Prince of Wales visited this town he wished to see some wild Indians of his realm. Young Oronhyateka was presented to him. The Prince was pleased, took the young subject for his protege, placed him at Oxford for several years, and settled upon him an annuity for his maintenance. Albert's philanthropic experiment triumphed. His ward returned, married a chief's daughter, entered upon a career as merchant, became bankrupt, leaving creditors and partners $6,000 behind, and built the most showy residence in Napanee. He was civilized! His card stands here: "Dr. Oronhyateka, M. D., Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur, Dundas street, Napanee, Ontario."

THE PRESIDENT AND SOUTH CAROLINA.—Judge T. J. Mackey, one of the most prominent Republicans of South Carolina, in a recent speech said: "Four or five weeks ago I visited Washington, and at the suggestion of a distinguished Republican Senator called upon President Grant. Hardly had I taken a seat before he asked: 'What do you mean by such a Government as you have in South Carolina?' I replied, 'I hope you do not mean that I supported it in its iniquity?' 'I mean that all Republicans are responsible, unless it is checked at the ballot-box,' replied the President. And while the President speaks calmly of all the great battles he fought, or the most stirring events of the war in which he participated, yet when I talk to him of South Carolina his apparently pulseless lips quiver, his veins and his eyes enlarge, and he says: 'You must stop the robbery!' As a Republican I regard this as a field order, and am moving under it."

If anything will impress the human mind with awe it is the expression of the man's face who has just been aroused from snoring in church.

SEA FISHERIES OF NEW ENGLAND.

NUMBER II.

THEIR CONDITION ON THE SOUTH COAST.

Article No. 1 having established the fact of a vast decrease in the extent and value of the summer shore-fisheries on the south side of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the question recurs as to the causes which have led to this result. The causes are fully detailed in Professor Baird's report, from which we abstract the following:

THE RAVAGES OF PREDACEOUS FISHES.

This, Prof. Baird is quite satisfied, is a cause worthy of serious consideration, the principal offender being the blue-fish. No one who has spent a season on the coast where this fish abounds can fail to have been struck with its enormous voracity, and the amount of destructiveness which it causes among other kinds of fish. Wherever it appears in large numbers it is sure to produce a marked effect upon the supply of other fishes, either by driving them away from their accustomed haunts or by destroying them in large quantities in any given locality. It is a pelagic or wandering fish, going in immense schools, and characterized by a voracity and bloodthirstiness, which, perhaps, has no parallel in the animal kingdom. The Professor says:

"The fish seems to live only to destroy, and, is constantly employed in pursuing and chopping up whatever it can master. As some one has said, it is an animated chopping machine. Sometimes among a school of herring or menhaden thousands of blue-fish will be seen, biting off the tail of one and then another, destroying ten times as many fish as they [illegible] need for food, and leaving in their track the surface of the water covered with the blood and fragments of the mangled fish.

The blue-fish range in size, when two years of age and over, from five to twelve pounds. I ascertained by a careful inquiry into the number shipped by the dealers along the shore that about [illegible] be estimated as the number captured along through Vineyard Sound and on the coast from Monomoy Point through Long Island Sound and sent to market in 1871. Any one who has seen these fish will judge that not one in a hundred is taken. If, now, we admit the presence of 100,000,000 blue-fish in these waters referred to, we may form some estimate of the number of fish destroyed by them. To estimate twenty per day as the number destroyed, if not devoured, by each blue-fish, is by no means extravagant, when we bear in mind the [illegible] of my own examinations and the testimony of others.

We all know that fish-spawn and fish in different stages of growth constitute the principal source of food to other fishes in the sea, and that the great proportion of fishes devoured are of tender age. The blue-fish, however, will often attack species but little less than itself, and the 100,000,000 [illegible] ably destroy fishes of two or three ounces and upward; that is to say, those that have passed the ordinary perils of early life, and have a fair chance to [illegible] maturity. Therefore, if 12,000,000 are eaten, the number destroyed off the New England coast in a season of one hundred and twenty to one hundred and fifty days can be easily estimated.

No other sea or shore than that of the Atlantic border of the United States can show, as far as our information extends, so destructive a scourge as the blue-fish, occurring in such numbers of so large a size and of so massive a frame; able to cope with and mutilate, if not devour, any other fish of less size. Indeed, I am quite inclined to assign to the blue-fish the very first position among the injurious influences that have affected the supply of fish on the coast. Yet, with all this destruction by the blue-fish, it is probable that there would not have been so great a decrease of fish as at present but for the concurrent action of man, as we shall endeavor to show further on."

HUMAN AGENCIES.

Under this head we must consider the pollution of the water by poisonous agencies. These may consist of chemical substances, which exert a directly poisonous influence, or of mechanical objects, such as sawdust, which, it is said, gets into the gills of fishes, and ultimately causes their death, or, falling to the bottom, with edgings, bark, etc., covers up the gravel and destroys the natural spawning-beds, and thus prevents the development of the eggs. These causes, however, apply essentially to rivers, and they exert but little influence in regard to the fishes of the sea.

IMPROPER OR EXCESSIVE FISHING.

The capture of the sea fishes by man is usually prosecuted either by the hook and line, or by means of nets or weirs. While the seines ensure enormous quantities of certain kinds of fish, under especially favorable circumstances, the pounds and traps take them in still larger number, because they act without the direct agency of their owners, who can remain on shore during stormy weather, assured that the very disturbance of the sea will conduce to the greater extent of the catch. Thousands of barrels of fishes are frequently taken at a time, and I am myself cognizant of the capture of no less than 20,000 blue fish, representing a weight of at least 100,000 pounds, in one weir, in the course of a single night. These patent machines are usually put down in the waters of Rhode Island and Massachusetts in the early spring, and kept at work for six weeks, or even longer; not unfrequently throughout the whole summer, but are taken up before the autumnal storms occur, in order to prevent their destruction.

The expense of a net-pound is very considerable, amounting to two and even three thousand dollars, while four men at least are required throughout the season to attend to one. They are usually in operation by the 1st of May, and they take generally more or less, in the order specified, the following more important kinds of fish: Alewives, horned dog-fish, tautog, mackerel, menhaden, scup, sea bass, bluefish and squeteague. By the middle of June the supplies of some of these fish decrease to such an extent that traps and pounds are generally taken up for the season. Some of the pounds, however, are kept down throughout the summer, especially with the object of securing menhaden, bluefish, Spanish mackerel and squeteague, other fish being captured occasionally, but in inconsiderable amount. It is noteworthy in this connection that, with the exception of dogfish, mackerel, alewives and menhaden, the edible fish taken in the first part of the season, consist of those species which constitute the great body of the summer catch with the line, and which are known to find their spawning ground along the south coast of New England. It is these fish to which the inquiries of the Rhode Island and Massachusetts Legislatures have been particularly directed, and which, with the exception of bluefish, make up the most important of the summer fisheries. They are still taken in great numbers by the pounds and traps, although fewer than formerly, and consist in great proportion of adult males and females, rife with milt and with spawn. We can, therefore, easily understand how a most injurious influence may be exercised upon the fisheries by the capture of so large numbers under the circumstances referred to. The report says:

"In all discussions and considerations in regard to the sea-fisheries one important principle should be carefully borne in mind, and that is that every fish that spawns on or near the shores has a definite relationship to a particular area of sea-bottom; or, in other words, that, as far as we can judge from experiment and observation, every fish returns as nearly as possible to its own birthplace to exercise the function of reproduction, and continues to do so, year by year, during the whole period of its existence. This principle underlies, as is well known, all effort looking toward restoring to our rivers their supply of salmon, shad and alewives; since it is well known that it is not sufficient to merely remove restrictions that had for years prevented the upward run of these fish, but a colony of young fish must be established in the head-waters of these streams, which, running down to the sea at the proper time, and returning again when fully matured, shall fill the waters to the desired extent.

It is an established fact that salmon, alewives and shad, both young and old, have been caught on certain spawning-beds, and after being properly marked and allowed to escape, have been found to reappear in successive years in the same locality. The principle is rather more difficult to establish in regard to the purely marine fishes; but experiments have been made by competent men on our coast and elsewhere which prove the existence of the same general principle in relation to them. Thus I was informed by an intelligent fisherman living at Rockport, [illegible], that he had [illegible] marked young and old haddock, and during several seasons they have been caught on about the same grounds.

A second law, equally positive, with a great variety of fish, is that they pass from their spawning grounds to the sea by the shortest route that will take them out into the deep waters, where they spend the winter; and that coming and going to and from a given locality they follow a determinate and definite line of migration.

Having in mind these two principles, we shall then better appreciate what takes place when fish are disturbed or caught up during the breeding season. Should they be stopped along their line of travel before they have spawned, so that when they strike the coast they are immediately arrested, first at one point and then at another, running a [illegible] of dangers in their course to their [illegible] tion; and should an appreciable proportion of them be caught before the[illegible] have laid [illegible] and fertilized, it is easy to see why the stock should rapidly diminish.

As most fish require from three to five years of growth before they are capable of reproduction and in many [illegible] remain in the [illegible] until this period is reached, it will follow that for several years after the establishment of an exhausting fishery the supply may appear to be but little interfered with, since there are several successive crops of fish to come on at the annual intervals, and not until the entire round has been completed [illegible] the injurious agencies begin to [illegible] the evidence of their severity. It is easy, therefore, to understand why, after five or ten years' fishing, the supply of fish in a given bay or along a [illegible] of the coast will be reduced to a very considerable degree, and although it may be perfectly true that the sea is practically inexhaustible of fish, yet if the fish of a particular [illegible] are cleaned out, there is no hope that others will come in from surrounding localities to take their place, since those also related to a given undisturbed area continue in their relationship and have no inducement to change their ground. It should therefore be understood that the exhaustion of a local fishery is not like dipping water out of a bucket, where the vacancy is immediately filled from the surrounding body; but it is more like taking lard out of a keg, where there is a space left that does not become occupied by anything else."

The principle may safely be considered as established that line-fishing, no matter how extensively prosecuted, will never [illegible] affect the supply of the fish in the sea. As a general rule, fish, when engaged in the [illegible]tion of reproduction, will not take the hook, whatever be their abundance; but as soon as the critical season has passed, they feed very voraciously, and then can be readily caught by skilled fishermen. It therefore would be no evil should every grown fish of three to five years old and upward be lifted from the sea after the close of the [illegible], in the course of a season, since the following year we may look for a new generation coming in to exercise the function of reproduction; and ample provision will thus exist for a steady supply from year to year. As already explained, the case is entirely different when these fish are caught before they [illegible], and the evils that we have depicted follow, in the train of such thoughtless destruction, precisely equivalent to killing of all the mothers in a farm-yard before they have laid [illegible] and then expecting to have the stock continued indefinitely. As well might the farmer expect to keep up his supply of wheat, year by year, while he consumed all his grain, reserving none for seed, and without the possibility of obtaining it from an other source.

In conclusion, Prof. Baird [illegible] the decrease of the fish may be considered as due to the combined action of the fish-pounds or weirs and the blue-fish, the former destroying a very large percentage of the spawning fish before they have deposited their eggs, and the latter devouring immense numbers of young fish after they have passed the ordinary perils of immaturity.

MR. BEECHER'S STATEMENT.

COMMENTS OF THE NEW YORK PRESS.

NEW YORK, August 15.—All the papers comment editorially on Beecher's defense. The Herald reviews the statement at length, and says it is strong, and perhaps will be [illegible] by Beecher's friends as a vindication; but the public, while hoping for the best, will not accept it as a final disposition of the case. Moulton's full statement has to be made, and the Committee has yet to report. No one has a right to assume the innocence of B[illegible] until the verdict of Plymouth Church has been formally rendered and the [illegible] in full, while even then it may be [illegible] to [illegible] judgment until the question has been taken to that higher tribunal [illegible] Tilton says he is bound to bring it.

THE "TRIBUNE"

Considers Beecher has [illegible] and natural explanation of Tilton's charges, and the statement will clear away the clouds that have been dark and thick about his name. Had it come sooner the [illegible] would now be dead. People will probably regard his course as unwise, his friendship as unworthy, his heated language in critical moments as [illegible] and his course throughout the whole [illegible] business weak, but not wicked.

THE "[illegible]"

Says the statement discloses a curious amount of moral cowardice and a great deal of irrational behavior. It reveals Beecher's character as entirely different from what it had been generally supposed to be, but it believes that the public feeling will be general that his story is not inconsistent with innocence.

THE "WORLD"

Says Beecher has rescued himself from his own peril. He has made the needed explanation, sparing neither Tilton, Moulton nor himself, and dispelled the only shadow of distrust which had crept over his good name among fair-minded men.

THE "[illegible]"

Considers that Beecher's statement will change the whole subject, and there is now reason to believe that the whole truth will be brought out, for no person who is guilty or connected with it can escape public condemnation.

THE "STAR"

Considers that Beecher has absolved himself absolutely and entirely from every taint of suspicion.

THURSDAY MORNING AUGUST 20 1874

THE SARATOGA TREATY

A short time since it transpired that a meeting of railway magnates, rep[illegible]ing several of the principal lines in the different sections of the Union, had been held at Saratoga, to consider the means best adapted to protect the railway interests against the people. At first this meeting appeared to have [illegible] dental and without prior understanding. It was given out that these magnates, having come in personal contact with each other while enjoying the [illegible] of the watering season at the celebrated summer resort, had suddenly bethought them [illegible] the favorable opportunity for combining be[illegible] with pleasure, and that an important [illegible] had been the consequence of the happy thought. It turns out, however, that the meeting was quite [illegible] of meeting by chance, that is, it was a pre-concerted af[illegible] of the wat[illegible] and not [illegible] the merely incidental part of the pro[illegible]. The Chicago Tribune, always forward to get the earliest [illegible] of any important move on the che[illegible] board, called attention to the meeting a week in adv[illegible] when and where it [illegible] be held, and that its object was to frame "an offensive and [illegible] of all the roads in the country, similar to the arrangements lately made by the [illegible] lines. It turned out just as the Tribune had announced that it would, except that the treaty did not reach that point of definiteness in its details which is necessary to make it of immediate value. The most is to be done hereafter. The only thing definitely [illegible]ed upon, was that there should in all c[illegible], so far as practicable, be ap[illegible] umpires or arbitrators to adjust disputes between the railway companies and the people. This of course means that the [illegible] of the times are so rapidly and [illegible] settling the law in favor of the right of the p[illegible] through their Legislatures to sub[illegible] the [illegible] to [illegible]able legislation, that the monopolies must seek favor upon some new line of defense or they will inevitably go to the wall [illegible] soon. Whether this very light chaff will catch anybody remains to be [illegible], with the probabilities all [illegible] the proposition. A people po[illegible]ing the intelligence and firmness displayed by the working classes of America since the commencement of their strife with the railways, will hardly be deluded by a fraud so perfectly transparent. They will rather secure the victory they have already achieved by perfecting their laws to regulate the railways, so they shall work no h[illegible] at the same time make it imp[illegible]ble for the corporations to [illegible].

One of the most careful and conservative of the [illegible] upon the Saratoga meeting and the manifest purpose of the railway [illegible] to enter [illegible] says "We do not prop[illegible] to take the ground that there is anything [illegible] wrong in the railroads combining to protect [illegible] their interests. To do so would be to p[illegible] upon the popular [illegible] has been organized against them. But this does not prevent us from pronouncing it ill-judged, unwise and suicidal. No unprejudiced man can cast his eye over the field upon which there is ranged on the one side the people and on the other side the great railroad corporations, without at once perceiving the banners upon which victory is certain to alight. It was a question [illegible] tion and concession on the part of the railroad managers [illegible] of organization and proclamation of war. We have no desire to [illegible] of the new organization which was [illegible] into existence the other day at Saratoga. It is [illegible] that it has great resources to draw upon and the material of war in abund[illegible]. But its adversaries will have equally strong and imperious [illegible] to urge them on, for the great stake for which the rail[illegible] is at this time mainly in the [illegible] road organization is to compel the masses to pay more for transportation than they in justice think [illegible].

But the organization to which we have referred is to be [illegible] of the [illegible] given of a fixed pr[illegible] to make no concession than because of the fact itself, for an informal [illegible], wielding just as much power, has been for years in existence. It has long been notorious that no railroad interest could be menaced at Washington without rallying in solid body all the railroad [illegible] of the [illegible], which, however antagonistic in minor points, are always ready to coalesce in the presence of the common [illegible]. In this Saratoga matter we have, therefore, little more than a [illegible] of an existing fact, but it means, as matters look at present, resistance to the last. We have only to say that we think the gentlemen who, while sipping their cobblers at Saratoga, came to this mo[illegible] conclusion, made a grievous mistake. There was a large opportunity for concession and compromise. For having [illegible] they have no one to blame but them[illegible].

DISREGARD IT AT YOUR PERIL

Again and again the New York Times thunders in the [illegible] of the Republican party the note of warning. The threat of the party managers to start a new paper at the Empire City which should be in closer sympathy with the organization, has no terrors for the Times. Instead of sounding a retreat, it only lays on the harder. One day it tells Republicans that Butlerism is a disease that has fastened itself upon the party, not in Massachusetts only but all over the country, and that [illegible] length and courage to cleanse its ways, it will be buried out of sight beneath a torrent of popular indignation at the next general election, the next day it declares matters have [illegible] to such a pass in the South that the only hope of the people is in the suc[illegible] [illegible] which are placed in the field in opposition to the carpet baggers. So it launches forth volley after volley at the vicious practices of the party. The scenes that are just now attracting especial attention in South [illegible], and the [illegible] of affairs in Minnesota are the occasion of the latest of these denunciations, which, like every [illegible] the Times on the [illegible]ject, is direct and pointed.

The sentiment of the dominant party in South Carolina and Minnesota revolts at such exhibitions of corruption and [illegible] as certain [illegible]. They will be cast out. If they cannot be defeated without defeating the party which they have disgraced even that alternative will not avail them any [illegible] that a restoration of the Democracy to power is likely to help the country to a more honest rule. The party in power must work out its own reformation. The Republican party may well take warning by the examples which we have above cited. Nominations for Congress are now in order. The people demand honest men. The Dunnells and Averills, whatever be their party names, will not do. Unless men who can secure and keep the confidence of their constituents are put up for Congress by the Republican party, they will be de[illegible]. So far as the Democracy have gained political power, they have failed to satisfy the people that they can mend matters. There is no hope in that direction. But Republicans must beware of forcing unpopular or undeserving candidates upon the people. That way lies an imminent peril.

That is the sort of Republicanism that the party has needed in its journals for a long time, and has had only during the two years last [illegible], only for a few months in the cases of many of its leading organs. Had the great party papers been faithful to their trust when the tendencies to corruption first began to show themselves in the organization, had they at once spoken out in condemnation of every dishonest p[illegible] in politics, making themselves no respecter of persons or of parties, but rebuked and warned their friends the same as their adversaries, had they, in short, d[illegible] all along as [illegible] of them are doing it now, there is every reason to believe they would now be spared the necessity of such strong language as the present status of party politics seems to call for. It will be well for the party if events do not demonstrate that the sentinel on its [illegible] toward have delayed to give notice of approaching danger till too late. Certainly, if it is not already too late, too much haste cannot be made in heeding the warning so tardily sounded, and endeavoring by the observance of a higher political morality and the nomination of candidates of commanding personal character, to recover the ground in popular confidence which the party has lost through the corruptions of the last few years. If the warning be still neglected it will be at the hazard of the party's existence.

THE OUTLOOK IN MASSACHUSETTS

The Republican politicians of Massachusetts have been thrown on their beam ends, by the refusal of both Mr. Henry L. Dawes and Mr. E. R. Hoar to accept renominations to Congress. The ability of Mr Hoar is above question, while Mr Dawes, on the floor of the House and as chairman of the most important committee of the body, has distinguished himself and done honor to his con[illegible]. His services have been national in character, and have won him a national reputation. True, he has [illegible] discovered a lack of that high courage that [illegible] above the [illegible] of his time, but he occupies nevertheless a place in the foremost rank in Congress, having few equals in either branch. The Republican papers of Massachusetts seem to fear it will not be possible to fill the places of these two men by others of equal ability and character, and at the same time to feel by no means certain that any inferior men can be elected if nominated. This sounds strange when spoken of Massachusetts, but such appears indeed to be the situation. And the apprehensions of the Massachusetts Republicans are shared by those of their friends who are best qualified to judge correctly. The Monitor, the leading Republican paper of New Hampshire, thus refers to the condition of the party in Massachusetts:

> It [illegible] to be understood in the Bay State that [illegible] are no longer wanted there in [illegible] important positions as members of Congress. Indeed, the belief is there entertained that public opinion is changed to such a degree, that a mere party nomination in a Republican District may be unavailing, unless candidates for popular support be men of undoubted ability and integrity. In other words that the right to bolt a positively bad or unsuitable nomination is obtaining such hold upon the public sentiment of Massachusetts, that Republican journals in that Commonwealth are not without apprehension that there are breakers ahead, certainly so unless men of unquestioned [illegible] and ability are offered for support at the polls.
>
> And there is reason to believe that a corresponding sentiment is [illegible], although perhaps slowly, permeating the country, proving that good is often educed from evil. Hitherto Congress has contained not merely too many men of limited capacity but a great surplusage of those who could be bought into the support of measures in which the lobby had a [illegible] interest than the country. This evil tendency reached its culminating point in what became known by the expressive name of Salary Grab. But good has already come of that heinous transgression, for Butler, who engineered the bill and those who voted for the Salary Grab have gone down together.
> The signs of the times make it certain that the Republican party to elect a majority in the next House of Representatives must offer none but honest men for popular support, men who on reaching Washington, will not forget that the eyes of their constituents are upon them and that the follies of the past cannot be repeated with impunity.

A correspondent of the San Francisco Chron[illegible] complains that the tomb of Broderick has been defaced by some scribbler, and avers that he has seen the following inscription on the monument at Lone Mountain penciled there by some idle scribbler:

> "Why seek ye the living among the dead?
> He is not here, but risen.
> Broderick California's mechanic Senator is reincarnated the son of a blacksmith and is to-day cradled among the Sierras. He will yet reappear as the laborers champion and friend and be known in history as the Blacksmith President."

GENERAL CUSTER.—General Custer tells in an amusing way why he did not graduate with his class at West Point. "Ludlow, he says (now Colonel Ludlow) was a greeny but he had pluck, and one evening when I was officer of the day, some upper classman pitched on to him and he showed fight. The boys encouraged them until they got into a good square out-and-outer, just as I was going my rounds. Instead of sending both of them as I should, to the guard-house, you know, I pushed back some fellows that were trying to trip Ludlow and said that there must be fair play. It was a good one, and Ludlow was getting the best of it, when the boys began to interfere again. I was just getting my hand in again when old [illegible] instructor in artillery came around and instead of arresting Ludlow and the other fellow, he locked me up for allowing the fight to go on and I was in the guard house when my class graduated. But they wanted soldiers at Washington just then and they sent me on. I never went back there again."

THE WIFE OF GENERAL SHERMAN.—A Washington correspondent [illegible] sketches Mrs Sherman. Her father was the late General Thomas Ewing, of Ohio. Mrs. Sherman, a [illegible] person, is almost as great a favorite as the General. She is a devoted Catholic, and is foremost in every [illegible] effort in behalf of her Church. Her daughters are pretty blonde girls of quiet and modest style girls who passed in society as models of good breeding and gentleness of demeanor. Mrs Sherman from her education and religious belief is inclined to more rigor of principle and manner than characterizes many mothers of our modern May fair, and the General had been heard to regret the absence of dancing at his house though I know Mrs Sherman's drawing rooms were quite the stage for a company of young people engaged in private theatricals. At any rate Mrs Sherman has allowed no element of 'fastness' to take root in her family and her household retains an old time simplicity and purity in the midst of a very gay and light hearted world. She has lately written or edited a memoir of her illustrious father in which it seems he died a professor of the Catholic faith.

The Cologne Gazette asserts that Captain Schmidt recently murdered by the Carlists was forcibly baptised as a Catholic before his execution.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Twenty-Second Annual Conference

Seventh Day.

MORNING SESSION.

Conference met at the usual hour. Divine service was conducted by Rev J W Roork.

Minutes were read and after some corrections adopted.

The Bishop stated that he had before him certain papers preferring charges against Rev Wm Roberts. The charges were preferred by Mr Matthews and accused Mr Roberts first of immoral conduct and second of embezzling church funds in Idaho City about eight years ago.

Mr Roberts, the accused, asked permission to read a true statement of the case. The request was granted and the accused was allowed to read to the Conference a prepared statement in which he denied in toto every charge brought and gave a satisfactory explanation of the circumstances out of which the alleged transactions arose.

Rev J W Roork moved that the bill of charges be dismissed and that a commission be appointed by the Conference which should proceed to investigate the charges at once and to report the facts and findings at the next meeting of the Conference.

The motion to dismiss the bill and appoint a Commission provoked considerable discussion. The motion however prevailed.

Rev Mr Doane moved that that portion of Roork's motion relating to the appointment of a Commission be reconsidered, as he deemed such action on the part of the Conference unnecessary. Subsequently Mr Doane withdrew his motion.

The Bishop stated that he would not appoint the Commission just then; that the matter could be taken up afterward, as other business claimed the attention of the Conference.

Rev Mr Atwood, who had been transferred from the New Jersey Conference, was introduced, admitted as a member of the Oregon Conference and invited to take a seat on the floor.

The Bishop stated that the time had arrived when the case of Rev I D Driver was to be taken up.

Rev F F Royal, one of the counsel for the prosecution, moved that the case of Mr Driver be submitted without argument to the Conference.

This was strongly opposed by Judge Thornton and other of the counsel, and the motion was at length withdrawn.

Gov Gibbs moved, and it was carried, that each of the opposing counsel be allowed fifty minutes in which to make the argument.

Judge Thornton, associate counsel for the prosecution, opened the case in behalf of the Church. He revised very briefly the charges and the evidence presented in support of the same.

Gov Gibbs followed at length in behalf of the defense, reviewing the evidence and making a strong and eloquent appeal for the accused.

Judge Thornton closed the argument, summing up in brief the testimony educed in the case in behalf of the Church, after which the case was submitted to the action of the Conference.

THE FINAL VOTE.

Pending the final vote as to the guilt or innocence of Mr Driver a great deal of time was unnecessarily consumed by members in asking all manner of questions of a legal and disciplinary character, stating their personal views and convictions of the case, and making what would seem endless explanations.

At length, after an interminable scene of confusion, in which the patience of the Conference was severely tested, the Bishop stated that the final vote would be taken.

By special request the following members were excused from voting: Rev M Judy, J H Allyn and Spencer.

It was announced that the members would be required to vote on the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 9th, 10th and 11th specifications, each one of which charged Mr Driver with having uttered falsehoods on various occasions.

The first charge—accusing Driver of being guilty of immoral conduct, in that he stated before an official meeting of the Albany charge on the 13th March 1874, held in the parsonage, that Rev C W Shaw was caught in seven distinct lies and that he was required to confess his guilt and that he did confess the same before the official Board in the Taylor street M E Church in Portland, was voted upon.

The charge was sustained by a vote of yeas 20, nays 18.

The 4th and 5th specifications, which were merged into one, charging the accused of falsehood, were not sustained, the vote standing yeas 8, nays 27.

Sixth specification—falsehood—was not sustained by a vote of 3 to 32.

Seventh specification—falsehood—not sustained by a vote of 2 to 33.

Ninth specification—falsehood—not sustained by a vote of 5 to 25.

Tenth specification—falsehood—not sustained by a unanimous vote.

Eleventh specification—falsehood—not sustained by a unanimous vote.

The Bishop stated that as the Conference had sustained the first charge of immoral conduct it now remained for the members to determine the grade of the offense committed by Mr Driver. The Conference had decided by their vote that the charge was true, but would the charge justify the specification of falsehood had Mr Driver been guilty of immoral conduct?

On this point, much discussion ensued as to what action the Conference would take.

At length the vote was taken, "Does the charge sustain the specification of falsehood?" and was voted down unanimously.

It was moved and seconded that the offense be defined as improper language. A vote was taken on the motion resulting as follows: yeas 24, nays 6.

The Bishop was requested to read from the Discipline the penalty attached to such a grade of offense. This was done, which was as follows: "Any member having been deemed guilty of improper language or actions, shall be reprehended by his senior in office."

Mr Nichols moved that in the present instance the penalty as prescribed by the Discipline be omitted. The motion was seconded, and on being submitted to a vote of the Conference was carried without a dissenting voice.

On motion the Conference adjourned until 2 P M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Meeting promptly at 2 P M, Conference was called to order by the President, Bishop Merrill, and opened with prayer by G W Roork.

The journal of the morning session was read.

Mr Doane arose and said that some of the brethren had misunderstood the nature of the vote in Mr Driver's case; that some of them thought the record would show that Brother Driver had been guilty of falsehood, but he believed the specification showed that the only charge sustained was improper language. An extract from the minutes was read showing that the latter view was correct, and that the Conference had decided that Mr Driver was acquitted of the charge of falsehood.

The minutes were approved.

CONFERENCE MINUTE BUSINESS.

This order of business was now taken up and the Conference under control of the Bishop as presiding officer seemed to have come to the conclusion that time was worth something, and that if the preachers intended to do a full year's work before the next annual session they must get through this business, and yet that without much unnecessary delay; and though questions would occasionally arise which required explanation, short speeches were the order of the afternoon proceedings. The Conference saves a great deal of precious time by having [illegible].

FOURTH QUESTION.

"Who are the supernumerary preachers" was taken up.

The names of G W Roork, J W Turner and Geo H Greer were called, and the presiding elders having stated that nothing appeared against them, the relation of each was changed from that of supernumerary to the effective.

The name of J S Douglass was called, and his elder stated that nothing appeared against him. On motion his supernumerary relation was continued.

[illegible]

Under the question "Who are the superannuated preachers" the name of [illegible] Spencer was called and it was stated that there was nothing against him. Mr Spencer was called up and made a statement of his purpose to continue in the work of the Christian ministry till the end of his life. His relation was continued.

The name of W Helm was called, and his case being clear, his superannuated relation was continued.

J W York's name was called, nothing appearing against him. He had preached much during the past year, and wished his relation continued, which was done.

The names of Gustavus Hines and Nelson Rounds were called, and it was stated that they had died during the year, and that the Committee on Memorials would report on their names at the proper time.

QUESTION SIXTH.

This question, "Who are the Deacons of the 2d class," was read. The name of Wm McPheeters was called. His missionary collection was reported at $24. The Examining Committee reported his standing eight in two of his studies and nine in two others, while logic was not in the course which Mr McPheeters had studied. He was elected to Elders Orders.

The tenth question as follows: "Who are the effective Elders" was taken up. The name of Wm Roberts, of the

PORTLAND DISTRICT

Was called. There was nothing reported against him. He reported that the work on the district during the year had been one of much labor and some considerable success. The Taylor street, Hall street and East Portland charges were prosperous; the North Portland work had not grown as could be wished. Milwaukie circuit was too large for one man. Mr R[illegible] had done good work on Clear creek circuit. Rock creek was in the brush but had been well attended to. Oregon City, Dayton, McMinnville, East Tualatin, Hillsboro and Yamhill were reported in a prosperous condition. East Tualatin was a hard place for a preacher, but Bro. P[illegible] had labored acceptably on that charge. Mr Roberts declared his purpose to rest awhile after the close of the ensuing year. He felt that he would soon reach the point when he would be justified in asking his brethren to excuse him from the labor and heat of the day, but he expected to end his work with his life.

The names of the preachers on this district were called, and at the close of each of them the presiding Elder reported, "Nothing against him."

SALEM DISTRICT

Was represented by I D Driver, who reported that the District had been blessed with some prosperity during the year. Its extent and population were both large. Salem charge began the year with a heavy debt which yet remained. Albany charge began the year under similar circumstances, but had been more fortunate, as nearly all her debt had been paid and her membership had nearly doubled. Corvallis station had prospered in charge of Father York and Dr Boswell. Howell Prairie had enjoyed an excellent revival and was growing in numbers. Monroe had been prosperous, and many conversions had taken place and new members added to the Church. Eugene had built a fine parsonage and the station was prosperous. Creswell, Springfield, Lebanon, Brownsville, Jefferson and Dallas circuits had each shared a fair degree of prosperity, and all the charges were about out of debt.

The names of preachers in this district were called and their standing reported clear and good as follows: John Flinn, J H Roork, J S McCain, Wm McPheeters, J Wilson, P M Starr, D L Spaulding, W D Nichols, A C Fairchild, N Clark, W. E Wilmot, C W Shaw, L [illegible] Powell, I M Nickerson. W L Wilmot was located at his own request.

The name of J James was called. He had left his work at the end of the second quarter and expressed himself that he would never attend another annual Conference, and that he had no request to make. His case seemed to be an anomalous one. There was nothing against his moral character, and it was stated as an evidence of the esteem in which he was held he had been appointed Postmaster at Dallas. The Bishop thought that was not evidence of good moral character. A Committee of Inquiry in his case was appointed, consisting of Revs York, Hoberg, Conner, Parrish and Doane. The Committee was given leave to retire for the consideration of the case.

UMPQUA DISTRICT.

Being called, the Presiding Elder Rev S H Todd made a clear, concise and very intelligent report of the condition of church affairs in his district—the wants of the people, the growth of the country and its consequent increasing demands upon the church for the extension of religious institutions. The work of the past year had been prosecuted under many difficulties. In the western part of the district traveling facilities were very deficient, and the preachers had often to reach their appointments by the aid of canoes, or if they had a little nautical skill they might occasionally be wafted on by the breeze, if they had a sail to hoist. The attention of the public now being attracted by the gold and coal mines, the lumber trade and fisheries in that region, was drawing many people in that direction who ought to have church privileges extended to them. The year on Umpqua District however, had been one in which considerable prosperity had been enjoyed, nor do we wonder at it when it has been under the care of such a man as Mr Todd, who showed by his report that he thoroughly understands the situation and appreciates his responsibilities. His report was the best presented to the Conference. The names of the preachers in the Umpqua District were called and all were reported as in good standing. They are as follows: R Booth, C W Todd, C Alderson, N A Starr, J H Skidmore, T L Jones and J W Vancleve.

We should judge by the reports that all is harmonious on this district.

PUGET SOUND DISTRICT.

[illegible] Woodward represented this District, which embraces 18 counties and is as large as four of the New England States. Traveling had to be done by every conceivable means of conveyance—railroad, steamboat, Indian canoe, horseback and on foot. The District is over 100 miles long and nearly as wide. In consequence of the great extent of the district he had not been able to visit all the preaching places, having been in charge of the District only five or six months, but his report was clear and distinct as to the condition and requirements of the cause of the Church in that large scope of country, reaching from the boundary line of Washington Territory on the north to the Columbia, and from the Cascade mountains to the Pacific shore. The population was increasing slowly but the Church was hardly keeping pace with it. The year had been one of trial but much good had been done. The district required men who are not physically, mentally, morally or socially disqualified to achieve success elsewhere. The field was promising but required men who were not afraid of hardship.

The names of the preachers on this district the past year were called as follows: S H Mann, W I Cosper, [illegible], [illegible] Patterson, C H Hoxie, B Mathews, J W Miller, W [illegible], J H Allyn. Nothing against any of them was reported by the elder.

J H Allyn was granted a supernumerary relation at his own request.

Notice was given of the meeting of committees, the doxology was sung, and with the benediction the Conference adjourned until 8:30 this Thursday morning.

In these times when men count their coin before expending any considerable sum, it is conclusive evidence that money is decidedly scarce, and a man is calculating [illegible] making the most of what he has. [illegible] Now, in buying clothing the buyer reflects before making a purchase. He wants to know where by expending the least money he can at the same time receive something fully worth the money expended. We would advise all in want of something substantial [illegible] to call on [illegible].

CITY.

PEDESTRIANISM EXTRAORDINARY.—Sometime ago a young man now a resident of this city was bantered, while in San Francisco to make a wager on a walk from that city to New York in one hundred days. At the time he did not feel able to accomplish the task, but assured the party who was desirous of putting up against him, that he would consider the matter at the proper time. He has fully recovered his health and recently sent a communication to the party who offered to make the wager, signifying his will to undertake the feat and in addition a walk from Portland to San Francisco, provided additional time would be allowed him. This feat, if accomplished, will be a remarkable one, and we await with anxiety further particulars of the great walk. We have the information from a reliable source, and the name of the [illegible] is withheld in deference to the wish of that personage, who does not desire to become a subject of idle curiosity previous to the commencement of the extraordinary feat of [illegible] him. He is now in training preparatory to beginning the great task.

ANOTHER INVENTION.—Mr. Thomas Drennan, a resident of East Portland, has invented a churn, the propulsion of which is managed by [illegible] motion. It is box-shaped, and the dasher is formed by rows of wooden prongs [illegible] by the action of the lever. The churn has been tested on a farm back of East Portland and found to work satisfactorily. Butter was worked in five minutes. It [illegible] advantage of preserving all [illegible] worked, which is quite a saving [illegible] quantities of this indispensable [illegible] is made.

Councilman Russell presented the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That a warrant be drawn on the treasury in favor of J. W. Gould for the amount of $220 in addition to the amount heretofore allowed him for services as City Assessor during the year 1873.

Resolved, That notice be given that the Common Council propose to establish the grade of Montgomery street at the following heights above the base of grades: At the center of Thirteenth street at 197 feet; at Fourteenth street, 224 feet; at a point 120 feet west of the west line of Fourteenth street at 240 feet.

Adopted. On motion, the Council adjourned.

BOARD OF TRADE.

Pursuant to adjournment a second meeting was held at Ankeny's Hall last evening for the purpose of organizing a Board of Trade for the city of Portland.

The meeting was called to order by P. C. Schuyler, Chairman.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The committee appointed at the previous meeting to draft Constitution and By-laws, to be submitted to the present meeting through their Chairman, Mr. Corbett, presented their report which was read by the Secretary.

On motion of Mr. Goldsmith the report was received and the committee discharged.

THE CONSTITUTION

Was adopted as reported by the committee, except that the quarterly dues were fixed at $6 instead of $3. It provides for a President, First and Second Vice Presidents, Treasurer and Secretary, to be elected by ballot for the term of one year and also for Committees on Arbitration, Finance, Statistics, Navigation, Legislation and Regulations of Trade and Commerce. Any merchant, merchandise broker, manufacturer, banker, capitalist or insurance agent, residing in the State of Oregon or Washington Territory may become a member when reported on favorably by the Committee on Membership, and against whose admission not more than two negative votes be cast. Honorary membership may be conferred on distinguished visitors and others. A [illegible] majority vote is required to expel a member. Regular meetings shall be held on the second Tuesday following the first Monday of each month, the annual meeting to be held in May. Special meetings may be held at any time on call of the President, who must call a meeting on the written request of five members.

Both the Constitution and By-laws are very similar to that adopted by the Portland Board of Trade in 1870. The name and seal of the organization is the same as that of the 1870 Board.

OFFICERS.

After the adoption of the Constitution and By-laws Mr. Russell moved that the Board proceed to the election of officers, which motion prevailed.

M. S. Burrell and H. C. Leonard were appointed tellers.

The election resulted as follows: For President H. W. Corbett was chosen and took the Chair; 1st Vice President, W. S. Ladd; was chosen; 2d Vice President, B. Goldsmith; Secretary and Treasurer, Wm. Reid.

THE STANDING COMMITTEES

Elected were as follows:

Arbitration—P. C. Schuyler, P. Wasserman, [illegible] W. J. Van Schuyver, C. H. Lewis and L. [illegible].

Finance—Henry Failing, James Laidlaw, Edwin Quackenbush.

Legislation—H. Failing, Isaac White, A. P. Ankeny, H. C. Leonard and M. S. Burrell.

Statistics—Wm. Reid, W. H. Halsey and [illegible] McCraken.

Navigation—D. Macleay, A. P. Ankeny, H. C. Leonard, Wm. Reid and B. Goldsmith.

Regulations of Trade and Commerce—William Wadhams, J. J. Northrup and Chas. Lancaster.

PUBLIC SPIRIT.

The [illegible] stated that he had a communication [illegible] from [illegible] Ankeny [illegible].

On motion the proposition of Capt. Ankeny was accepted and the thanks of the Board tendered him for the generous offer.

On motion the Board adjourned until Wednesday evening, Aug. 26th, at 7:30.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Twenty-Second Annual Conference.

Seventh Day.

MORNING SESSION.

Conference met at the usual hour. Divine service was conducted by Rev. J. W. Roork.

Minutes were read and after the correction [illegible] adopted.

The Bishop stated that he had before him certain papers preferring charges against Rev. Wm. Roberts. The charges were preferred by Mr. Mathews and accused Mr. Roberts first of immoral conduct and second of embezzling church funds in Idaho City, about eight years ago.

Mr. Roberts, the accused, asked permission to [illegible] a true statement of the case. The request was granted and the accused was allowed to read to the Conference a prepared statement in which he denied in detail every charge brought and gave a satisfactory explanation of the circumstances out of which the alleged transaction arose.

Rev. J. W. Roork moved that the bill of charges be dismissed and that a commission be appointed by the Conference who should proceed to investigate the charges at once and to report the facts and findings at the next meeting of the Conference.

The motion to dismiss the bill and appoint a Commission provoked considerable discussion. The motion, however, prevailed.

Rev. Mr. Doane moved that that portion of Roork's motion relating to the appointment of a Commission be reconsidered, as he deemed such action on the part of the Conference unnecessary. Subsequently Mr. Doane withdrew his motion.

The Bishop stated that he would not appoint the Commission just then; that the matter could be taken up afterward, as other business claimed the attention of the Conference.

Rev. Mr. Atwood, who had been transferred from the New Jersey Conference, was introduced, admitted as a member of the Oregon Conference and invited to take a seat on the floor.

The Bishop stated that the time had arrived when the case of Rev. I. D. Driver was to be taken up.

Rev. F. P. Royal, one of the counsel for the prosecution, moved that the case of Mr. Driver be submitted without argument to the Conference.

This was strongly opposed by Judge Thornton and others of the counsel, and the motion was at length withdrawn.

Gov. Gibbs moved, and it was carried, that each of the opposing counsel be allowed fifty minutes in which to make the argument.

Judge Thornton, associate counsel for the prosecution, opened the case in behalf of the Church. He revised very briefly the charges and the evidence presented in support of the same.

Gov. Gibbs followed at length in behalf of the defense, reviewing the evidence and making a strong and eloquent appeal for the accused.

Judge Thornton closed the argument, summing up in brief the testimony educed in the case in behalf of the Church, after which the case was submitted to the action of the Conference.

THE FINAL VOTE.

Pending the final vote as to the guilt or innocence of Mr. Driver, a great deal of time was unnecessarily consumed by members in asking all manner of questions of a legal and disciplinary character, stating their personal views and convictions of the case, and making what would seem endless explanations.

At length, after an interminable scene of confusion in which the patience of the Conference was severely tested, the Bishop stated that the final vote would be taken.

By special request the following members were excused from voting: Rev. M. Judy, J. H. Allyn and Spencer.

It was announced that the members would be required to vote on the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 9th, 10th and 11th specifications, each one of which charged Mr. Driver with having uttered falsehoods on various occasions.

The first charge—accusing Driver of being guilty of immoral conduct in that he stated before an official meeting of the Albany charge on the 13th March, 1874, held in the parsonage, that Rev. C. W. Shaw was caught in seven distinct lies, and that he was required to confess his guilt, and that he did confess the same before the official Board in the Taylor street M. E. Church in Portland—was voted upon.

The charge was sustained by a vote of yeas 20, nays 18.

The 4th and 5th specifications, which were merged into one, charging the accused of falsehood, were not sustained, the vote standing yeas, 8, nays, 27.

Sixth specification—falsehood—was not sustained by a vote of 3 to 32.

Seventh specification—falsehood—not sustained by a vote of 2 to 33.

Ninth specification—falsehood—not sustained by a vote of 5 to 25.

Tenth specification—falsehood—not sustained by a unanimous vote.

Eleventh specification—falsehood—not sustained by a unanimous vote.

The Bishop stated that as the Conference had sustained the first charge of immoral conduct, it now remained for the members to determine the grade of the offense committed by Mr. Driver. The Conference had decided by their vote that the charge was true, but would the charge justify the specification of falsehood had Mr. Driver been guilty of immoral conduct?

On this point much discussion ensued as to what action the Conference would take.

At length the vote was taken: Does the charge sustain the specification of falsehood? and was voted down unanimously.

It was moved and seconded that the offense be defined as improper language. A vote was taken on the motion resulting as follows: Yeas [illegible]4, nays 6.

The Bishop was requested to read from the Discipline the penalty attached to such a grade of offense. This was done, which was as follows: "Any member having been deemed guilty of improper language or actions, shall be reprehended by his senior in office."

Mr. Nichols moved that in the present instance, the penalty as prescribed by the Discipline be omitted. The motion was seconded and on being submitted to a vote of the Conference was carried without a dissenting voice.

On motion the Conference adjourned until 2 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Meeting promptly at 2 P. M. Conference was called to order by the President, Bishop Merrill, and opened with prayer by G. W. Roork.

The journal of the morning session was read.

Mr. Doane arose and said that some of the brethren had not understood the nature of the vote in Mr. Driver's case; that some of them thought the record would show that Brother Driver had been guilty of falsehood, but he believed the specification showed that the only charge sustained was improper language. An extract from the minutes was read showing that the latter view was correct and that the Conference had decided that Mr. Driver was acquitted of the charge of falsehood.

The minutes were approved.

CONFERENCE MINUTE BUSINESS.

This order of business was now taken up and the Conference under control of the Bishop as presiding officer seemed to have come to the conclusion that time was worth something and that at the present rate it intended to do a full year's work before the next annual session, they must get through this business and get that without much unnecessary delay, and though questions would occasionally arise which required explanation, short speeches were the order of the afternoon's proceedings. The Conference evinced great desire of [illegible] time by having no [illegible] lawyers in it. The

FIFTH QUESTION.

Who are the supernumerary preachers? was taken up.

The names of G. W. Roork, J. W. Turner and Geo. H. Greer were called and their presiding elder having [illegible] nothing appeared against them the relation of each was changed from that of supernumerary to the effective.

The name of J. S. Douglass was called and his elder [illegible] nothing appeared against him. On motion his supernumerary relation was continued.

QUESTION NINTH.

Under this question, Who are the superannuated preachers? the name of John Spencer was called and it was stated that there was nothing against him. Mr. Spencer was called up and made a statement of his purpose to continue in the work of the Christian ministry till the end of his life. His relation was continued.

The name of W. Helm was called and his [illegible] being [illegible] his superannuated relation was continued.

J. W. York's name was called, nothing appearing against him. He had preached much during the past year [illegible] and wished his relation continued, which was done.

The names of Gustavus Hines and Nelson Rounds were called and it was stated that they had died during the year, and that the Committee on Memorials would report on their names at the proper time.

QUESTION SIXTH.

This question, Who are the Deacons of the 2d class? was read. The name of Wm. McPheeters was called. His missionary collection was reported at $4. The Examining Committee reported his standing eight in two of his studies, and nine in two others, while logic was not in the course which Mr. McP. had studied. He was elected to Elders' Orders.

The tenth question, as follows: Who are the effective Elders? was taken up. The name of Wm. Roberts of the

PORTLAND DISTRICT

Was called. There was nothing reported against him. He reported that the work on the district during the year had been one of much labor and some considerable success. The Taylor street, Hall street and East Portland charges were prosperous; the North Portland was [illegible] could be wished. Milwaukie circuit was too large for one man. Mr. [illegible] had done good work, but [illegible] creek circuit [illegible] was in the brush but had been well attended to. Oregon City, Dayton, McMinnville, East Tualatin, Hillsboro and Yamhill were reported in a prosperous condition. East Tualatin was a hard place for a [illegible] but Bro. Roe had labored acceptably on that charge. Mr. Roberts declared his purpose to rest a while after the close of the ensuing year. He felt that he would soon reach the point when he would [illegible] just [illegible] in asking his brethren to excuse him from the labor and heat of the day, but he expected to end his work with his life.

The names of the preachers on this district were called and in the case of each of them the presiding Elder reported, Nothing against him.

SALEM DISTRICT

Was represented by I. D. Driver, who reported that the District had been blessed with some prosperity during the year. Its extent and population were both large. Salem charge began the year with a heavy debt which yet remained. Albany charge began the year under similar circumstances, but had been more fortunate as nearly all her debt had been paid and her membership had nearly doubled. Corvallis station had prospered in charge of Father York and Dr. Boswell. Howell Prairie had enjoyed an excellent revival and was growing in numbers. Monroe had been prosperous and many conversions had taken place and new members added to the Church. Eugene had built a fine parsonage and the station was prosperous. Creswell, Springfield, Lebanon, Brownsville, Jefferson and Dallas circuits had each shared a fair degree of prosperity, and all the charges were about out of debt.

The names of preachers in this district were called and their standing reported clear and good as follows: John Flinn, J. H. Roork, J. B. McCain, Wm. McPheeters, J. Wilson, P. M. Starr, D. L. Spaulding, W. D. Nichols, A. C. Fairchild, N. Clark, W. E. Wilmot, C. W. Shaw, [illegible] J. Lowell, I. M. Nickerson. W. L. Wilmot was located at his own request.

The name of J. Jones was called. He had left his work at the end of the second quarter and expressed himself that he would never attend another annual Conference and that he had no request to make. His case seemed to be an anomalous one. There was nothing against his moral character, and it was stated as an evidence of the esteem in which he was held he had been appointed Postmaster at Dallas. The Bishop thought that was not "evidence of good moral character." A Committee of Inquiry in his case was appointed, consisting of Revs. York, Hoberg, Cisner, Parrish and Doane. The Committee was given leave to retire for the consideration of the case.

UMPQUA DISTRICT.

Being called the Presiding Elder, Rev. S. H. Todd, made a clear, concise and very intelligent report of the condition of church affairs in his district—the wants of the people, the growth of the country and its consequent increasing demands upon the church for the extension of religious institutions. The work of the past year had been prosecuted under many difficulties. In the western part of the district traveling facilities were very deficient, and the preachers had often to reach their appointments by the aid of canoes, or if they had a little nautical skill, they might occasionally be wafted on by the breeze if they had a sail to hoist. The attention of the public now being attracted by the gold and coal mines, the lumber trade and fisheries in that region, was drawing many people in that direction who ought to have church privileges extended to them. The year on Umpqua District, however, had been one in which considerable prosperity had been enjoyed, nor do we wonder at it when it has been under the care of such a man as Mr. Todd, who showed by his report that he thoroughly understands the situation and appreciates his responsibilities. His report was the best presented to the Conference. The names of the preachers in the Umpqua District were called and all were reported as in good standing. They are as follows: R. Booth, C. W. Todd, C. Alderson, N. A. Starr, J. H. Skidmore, T. J. Jones and J. W. Vandeve[illegible].

We should judge by the reports that all is harmonious on this district.

PUGET SOUND DISTRICT.

J. T. Woodward represented this District, which embraces 18 counties and is as large as [illegible] of the New England States. Traveling had to be done by every conceivable means of conveyance—railroad, steamboat, Indian canoe, horseback and on foot. The District is over 400 miles long and nearly as wide. In consequence of the great extent of the district he had not been able to visit all the preaching places, having been in charge of the District only five or six months. But his report was clear and distinct as to the condition and requirements of the cause of the Church in that large scope of country reaching from the boundary line of Washington Territory on the north to the Columbia and from the Cascade mountains to the Pacific shore. The population was increasing slowly, but the Church was hardly keeping pace with it. The year had been one of trial but much good had been done. The district required men who are not physically, mentally, morally or socially disqualified to achieve success elsewhere. The field was promising but required men who were not afraid of hard lap[illegible].

The names of the preachers on this district [illegible] were called as follows: S. H. Mann, W. I. Cosper, J. W. Kuykendall, H. Patterson, G. H. Hoxie, S. Mathew, J. W. Miller, W. [illegible], J. H. Allyn. Nothing against any of them was reported by the elder. J. H. Allyn was granted a supernumerary relation at his own request.

Notices were given of the meetings of committees [illegible] and with the benediction the Conference adjourned until 8:30 this Thursday morning.

In these times when men count their coin before expending any considerable sum, it is conclusive evidence of [illegible] and [illegible] best and [illegible] of making the most of what spare [illegible] has. [illegible] buying clothing the buyer reflects before making a purchase. He wants to know where by expending the least money he can at the same time receive clothing fully worth the money expended. We would advise all in want of [illegible] substantial as well as cheap, to call on Beck & Wallman.

A GRITTY TELLER

HE CHALLENGES THE PRESIDENT FOR AN ATTEMPT TO VIOLATE BANK RULES—AN INCIDENT WITH A MORAL

[From the Worcester Spy]

Some years ago, when the defalcations of bank officers were not so frequently made public as at present a young gentleman was invited temporarily to fill the place of an absconding teller of a prominent bank, who had neglected to square up his accounts before leaving. One day not long after a check for a large amount signed by the president of the bank was presented at the counter by one of his clerks. The President had no such amount on deposit, and the clerk was politely informed of the fact by the teller and that of course the check could not be paid "But it must be," said the clerk, "it is for the President of the bank" "I cannot help that," said the pro tempore officer "there are no funds to meet it" "I'll see if you don't pay it" "Sir, I shall pay no check unless the funds are here to back it," said the teller firmly "Then I will cash it myself," said the President, proceeding as if to do so from the pile of money before him "Sir," said the teller, "I am held responsible for that money, and if you touch a dollar of it you do it at your peril. But when my accounts for the day are made up and accepted you may take the whole for all I care" The President used strong language and retreated to the directors' room, and told how that impudent fellow had refused to honor his check A brief talk with his associates showed him that the teller was right One of the directors who had funds loaned his check to cover the emergency as the President sent a note for ten times the amount would have been promptly [illegible] counted if he had asked it and the teller supposing his time was up carefully prepared his accounts before the time for closing, and presented them to the President, saying he supposed he was to leave after what had passed "No sir," said the President, "you are not going You were right, and I was wrong"

If all bank cashiers and tellers could have the firmness and grit to refuse all over drafts of their directors and other powerful customers, we should hear of but very few defalcations of those officers, and if directors always conformed strictly to their own rules, and were moderately careful in looking after the books of their officers there would be but little inducement and less opportunity for such defalcations to [illegible] for any series of years.

ONE MORE CLERICAL SCANDAL

A MINNESOTA CATHOLIC PRIEST WHO WAS "KIND TO THE CHILDREN"

It has been ascertained that the cause of the disappearance of the Catholic priest at Osseo Father Maesfrancx, was the discovery of his improper advances to some little girls Bishop Grace received a letter from the missing priest yesterday dated at New York, in which he said that he would come home soon

Hon Z Demeules was in the city yesterday and made a statement to Father McGolrick of this city to the effect that the last time that he saw Father Maesfrancx he told him of the charges made against him and that on the next day he disappeared The following letter was found in his house

To Mr Demeules Mr Berthaume and others

For some time I have intended to retire to the Convent of Carmen in Iowa I could not, however, make up my mind to carry out my intention But God has permitted this undeserved accusation and I shall now go I protest that I have been kind to the children I have often played with them I requested Messrs Berthaume and Demeules to take charge of my clothes until sent for or until I return, which I may do soon

E MAESFRANCX

He left also a letter which implicated him in an intrigue while in Belgium, from which country he came

The utter lack of foundation to the reckless charges of the Anoka Union against Mr Demeules are now apparent, and that paper should be ashamed of itself—Minneapolis Tribune

A HOMEOPATHIC JOKE —To arouse the wrath of a homeopathist just hint to him that he cannot make you sick or kill you with his infinitesimal sugar pills, as a regular allopath can do so [illegible] with his drugs An apothecary in Suttgardt, Germany, having a natural contempt for the sugar pills of Dr H [illegible] mann was therefore quite surprised recently when the Hahnemannia a society for the advancement of homeopathic treatment offered a prize of $30 to any one who, upon taking a certain homeopathic medicine should not experience the results predicted by the Hahnemannic doctors Desirous of maintaining the supremacy of his own drugs as the destructive agencies of the world he offered himself to the society as a victim to science The homeopathists smiled and gave him a drop of a glassful of water in which they had dissolved a tiny globule upon a large piece of sugar The tiny globule had however it seems, about a millionth grain of some substance in it that is generally used to raise blisters and the unlucky apothecary, a few hours after swallowing the drop had a mouth that looked as if a whole swarm of bees had been trying to suck honey out of it He could not even whistle for his $30. And now the Stuttgart homeopathists triumph and the allopaths hang their heads in shame but the common people look very sober, and wonder whether there is any school of medicine that is safe

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.—The last Jersey City murder, as it has been called, makes a romantic story The body of a man named James McCann was found on the road with two bullets holes in the head The police arrested one Frank Wagner on suspicion of being the murderer The circumstantial evidence against him was strong He had been on the road at the time the pistol shots were heard He bore a bad character He betrayed signs of fear when arrested He denied having been out which was proved at once to be an untruth He had that night exhibited a pistol at a saloon [illegible] by the spot where McCann's body was found Finally the bullet taken from McCann's head fitted the chambers of the revolver discovered in Wagner's room What stronger case could be made out against a prisoner? But suddenly a man comes forward a harmless and innocent fish dealer Thomas Brooks by name who tells how McCann met his death Brooks was driving into New York for a load of fish when McCann sprang into his wagon and attacked him Brooks fired at him twice and passed on ignorant that he had hit him and thinking that he had jumped from the wagon The mystery is solved but if Brooks had not told the truth would Wagner have escaped hanging —N Y Herald

A SNAKE STORY —Last Thursday evening as a young man named Franklin Rubright was on his way from his father's home at Windsor Castle Windsor township when about half a mile from the village he met a monster black snake lying along the roadside When within a few yards of the reptile it made for him and Mr Rubright having nothing with which to defend himself was obliged to run He soon found a club, however, and showed fight. After knocking down the snake several times as it rose up in front of him it seemed to be dead, and he endeavored to drag it along with him but the serpent soon recovered and fiercely attacked him the second time The fight this time lasted several minutes when the snake was again defeated and fled to a neighboring corn field where it was lost sight of as it was about getting dark According to Mr Rubright's estimation the snake must be at least 15 feet long and from 4 to [illegible] inches thick Search was made for it the following morning but without success The snake has been seen at different times in the neighborhood within the last twenty or twenty [illegible] years Its hiding place it is thought has now been discovered and a party of men are about to make a thorough search for it —Reading (Pa) Eagle

Smuggling is pursued resolutely on the Belgian frontier but Wouster Wouter was caught at it the other day He attempted to run the line by driving at full speed but the Custom House soldier brought down the horse with his rifle There was $600 worth of tobacco in the wagon and the horse was in armor and so armed with knives about the bridle that one could not have stopped him by hand without being cut to pieces

Home Produce Market

WHEAT—This cereal of the new crop is coming in very slowly for sale Buyers do not seem to urge the market although there are now in the river five foreign bound vessels supposed to have come here seeking cargoes of wheat and four of them under charter prior to arrival A few sales have been effected during the week at $1 45 per cental and we may expect some movement ere long if exporters are to make a concession of the difference which now exists between them and holders but if the latter are to give way trade may be dull for some time None of the vessels here have yet begun to load

FLOUR—The stocks are small, but owing to a diminished demand for shipping, caused by the incoming of the product of the new wheat in California the requirements of the trade here are easily met. A good article of extra is in fair supply jobbing at $5a 25 ℔ bbl but a few brands of standard qualities are held at $5 50 Common country make is in the market in fair quantities for the season at $4 75@5 fine to superfine, quotable at [illegible]4 50

OATS—The market is inactive in this cereal and receipts are falling off the shipping demand being rather dull The quotations furnished are 37½@40c ℔ bushel The new crop is everywhere reported as yielding well and prices are more likely to decline than advance The local demand is well supplied from the stocks on hand and current receipts.

HAY—There is a great abundance of the new crop of timothy offering at $10a11 ℔ ton baled or $8 50a9 for loose from wagons The demand except for local consumption, is very dull.

EGGS—The demand is quite brisk, and with light receipts prices have advanced to 30 cents per dozen

MR BEECHER'S STATEMENT

WHAT THE LEADING CHICAGO PAPERS SAY.

CHICAGO August 16 —Since the publication of Beecher's statement, the city [illegible] which were inclined to view favorably the case made out by Tilton against Beecher have pretty generally expressed the opinion that as the case stands Beecher will be [illegible] by public sentiment

The Tribune says "Beecher has thrown back the charges upon his [illegible] and [illegible] them rests the necessity for [illegible] His specific charge of blackmailing brands Moulton and Tilton with infamy, which, if not disproved, they cannot escape Though it may appear strange that Beecher submitted to the demand for $[illegible] 000 to secure silence on account of his hasty advice to Mrs Tilton and words that led to Tilton's discharge from the Independent this is not blamable, and does not deserve criticism Beecher's explanation of the apology rejects that document. What is required to sustain the charges against him and clear his accusers characters is the evidence they claim still to have especially Moulton's detailed statement. Should they not be carried further Beecher's friends would be justified in continued confidence in him, and he could pursue his work without reproach of criminality

The Times says Beecher's statement is extremely plausible and will doubtless be accepted by a large part of society as conclusive of his innocence though by another large part it will be deemed insufficient. No honest jury could give a verdict against the accused His statement if true, shows conclusively that Francis D Moulton and Theodore Tilton are a pair of scoundrels, and that Mr Beecher was the subject of the [illegible] diabolical conspiracy ever formed. His cross examination bears out his testimony consistently and clearly though technical flaws could readily be found in it Is it possible to believe that Beecher would weave a tissue that if false could readily be brushed away by a word from Bowen or a half-dozen documents from Moulton's collection? His concluding words express a sincerity and manliness that commands respect and gives great [illegible] to the fact that Moulson is in full sympathy with Woodhull's free-love doctrine, which explains many things otherwise inexplicable Those who have carefully weighed the testimony and considered the credibility of the witnesses, and the character and motives of the various parties must be satisfied that the most gigantic of conspiracies and most cruel of slanders has been utterly demolished by Beecher's statement Mr Beecher has been weak and foolish—all admit that but that he is guilty as charged we cannot believe The whole wretched business is the outgrowth of malice jealousy and misapprehension disseminated by busy mischief making tongues

The Post and Mail says Judging the matter from the two statements we cannot but give the case to Beecher Tilton's is full of malice chicanery, deceit and miscellaneous deviltry, which are centered in and personified by Moulton When to day's excitement is gone and the story is told in calmer words Theodore Tilton and Francis D Moulton will be written down as the most thorough scoundrels of the age

ONE OF THE DISTRICT JOBS — Among the things which the late District Government did on a scale as magnificent as the distances in the capital was sending a homeopathic physician a member of the Board of Health to Europe as a special Sanitary Commission His salary—$2 000 per year—was continued in his absence and he now sends in a bill of $3,000 for his expenses Nothing homeopathic about that certainly Notwithstanding these expenditures to make the city healthy it has been for the last two years the most unhealthy place on the continent—for politicians.—N Y Tribune
